

WILL STOP FLOOD OF HOSTILE LEGISLATION

Interstate Commerce Commission Hits
Upon Plan for Relief of Crisis in Railroad Situation.

A dispatch from Washington to the Herald says: It is understood that the interstate commerce commission finally hit upon a plan for the solution of the problem to relieve the present crisis in the railroad situation by bringing about a practical co-operation between the railroads and the federal government. The plan which is being considered and has practically gained the approval of the commission and the president is the appointment of a western interstate traffic commissioner to represent the commission with headquarters at St. Louis or Chicago. This man will co-operate with the public and the railroad officials in obtaining reasonable rate adjustments and to adjudicate all matters now in dispute. It is believed that this would stop the flood of hostile legislation against the railroads in the west and establish more friendly relations with the railroads on the part of the government.
